witness called by George W. Ward, counsel for the committee.

After detailing his experience in the milk business, both in Europe and America, he said he had worked his way up from a salary of $30 a nonth with board to his present alary of $5,000 a year.

Q. When did your company begin to pasteurize its milk? A. About 1990 or 1991, I think. That was long before it was required by the Board of Health.

Health.
Q. You were the first to supply pas-curized milk to New York? A. Yes, believe so.
Q. What induced you to bring milk in bulk to the city? A. We found that pasteurizing the milk in the country was more expensive than doing it in the city.

Q. Our accounts show that pasteur-izing milk in the country is less ex-pensive. A. Well, we have not found Mr. Ward then quoted figures to the

Mr. Ward then quoted figures to the witness showing country pasteurization was three mills cheaper than city pasteurizing, which was more than the profit per quart, but the witness insisted that he was right, despite Mr. Ward's figures.

The witness later said that if "things keep going as they are they will be pretty bad financially for most of us.." To which Mr. Ward remilled:

"Well. I guess your company is not going into bankruptcy. I would be willing to buy some of your stock at par."

Q.—How much milk do you need here in New York each day? A.—I couldn't just state the figures.
Q.—Well, our figures show that New York needs about 2.400,000 quarts a day. Is that right? A.—Yes, I guess it is.
Q.—How did you fix what you were going to get for your milk in

Q.—You mean to say that you couldn't get the people to appreciate that while they pay eight cents for milk in April they have to pay twelve in December? A.—Yes. I think that would be a hard thing to do.

The witness said that one of the

would be a hard thing to do.

The witness said that one of the reasons for the fluctuation of milk prices was the fact that the milk companies must buy in the spring of the year a milk surplus of 25 per cent that they don't want. Mr. Ward asked, if the farmers owned the stations and gave the companies only the amount of milk they actually needed, using the surplus themselves. would not the milk companies be able to charge a uniform price for milk at all times of the year. The witness replied to this that he thought
